

Asia Center Fellowship Program

Application Instructions

I. About the Program

The Asia Center Fellowship Program encourages joint or cooperative projects that cross national and cultural borders among individuals. Fellowships are offered to successful applicants who plan to pursue their research and activities outside their home country (or countries), and who seek to further develop their field(s) of expertise and form networks between individual and institutional counterparts in ASEAN and/or Japan in a wide range of fields such as arts and culture, academic exchange, and sports.

II. The Japan Foundation Asia Center's Mission

The Japan Foundation Asia Center (hereinafter the Asia Center) expands networks—both individual and institutional—in Asia, explores new initiatives with the region, and nurtures the sense of coexistence and understanding as fellow neighbors in Asia.

The four pillars of our mission are:

1. To expand the bases of cultural exchange for the betterment of mutual understanding

The Asia Center supports and implements a variety of projects that encourage more opportunities for exchange and dialogue, and that promote further mutual respect and understanding of the diverse cultures in Asia.

2. To promote human resources and soft infrastructure development initiatives

The Asia Center embraces the nurturing of rising cultural persons and institutions, and also the improvement of soft infrastructure (maintenance, systematization, etc.) for the sustenance and development of culture. These will be pursued through collaborative exchange with the region.

3. To form new networks and enduring bedrock and platforms for cultural exchanges

The Asia Center promotes the development of networks that bring cultural persons together and the building of an enduring substructure on which dialogues and collaborations can be shared, built, and continued toward resolving common concerns and achieving common goals in Asia.

4. To generate new values and discussions toward the future from Asia to the World

The Asia Center encourages collaborations in Asia and the wide circulation of new values and discussions generated to further expand the sphere of cultural and artistic exchange.

The Asia Center Fellowship Program particularly supports projects that pursue initiatives outlined in 2. to 4. and that have clear project objectives and plans.

III. Eligible Projects
